New Patterns for worship?

As part of a regular review of our activities, we need to consider All Saints' patterns of worship, and ask ourselves whether it is time to introduce change. Changing patterns of worship in a church may not automatically lead to growth – indeed, to begin with, you're very likely to lose some members who will not accommodate the change. However, any church that is serious about its commitment to welcoming new people, needs to provide something new.

Let me use our former church as an example. St Mary Magdalene Brampton used to have a regular Sunday pattern of services at 8.30 and 10am: 8.30am was always Holy Communion (no hymns) and never changed, week in week out – no families, no children. The problem with the 10 am Service was that it DID change, and you had to look up in a diary to find out what it would be:

Perhaps a Baptism, with lots of visitors (and noisy children).

Or, an All-Age service; you might be asked to talk to your neighbour (Interestingly, most of the children didn't like it either, and preferred to be in ordinary Sunday School).

Or, if it wasn't anything else, it was Holy Communion (with hymns, and not many visitors or noisy children). Depending on what it was going to be, some stayed away.

Added to that, within the church, different people liked different styles of worship, and different types of songs! Many wanted a liturgical pattern and good old classic hymns (played on the organ). Others, who for example had come to faith through Alpha or were otherwise new to church, preferred something less formal with modern songs, led by a band and (even) with words on a screen.

So, what was happening? Well, as you can imagine, for some it was too modern; while for others it was too traditional. People began to leave... A radical solution was needed; one that would provide two separate and distinct worship services – one 'Classic', the other 'Contemporary' – with no compromise. In 2006, with the backing of the Church Council, a new Sunday pattern was launched, with new service times:

9.15am Common Worship Holy Communion, with hymns (on the organ) – recognisably 'classic' Anglican.

11am, a new Parish Praise – more free; songs led by a band, and words on the screen via a newly-purchased projector.

Did it work? Was everyone happy? To be truthful, yes, it did work. Quite quickly, though the new times didn't suit everyone to start with, most were pleased to have made the change. There were a few vocal complaints at the AGM, and a few even left. But the new pattern of worship welcomed far more people than previously, and provided a basis for growth. The 9.15 service grew almost immediately; Parish Praise, as a new venture, was encouraging right from the start, though it took time to become established.

Here in All Saints, we have been seeking to Extend God's Welcome to All; a great deal of prayerful, committed hard work is put in to our services of Sunday Worship. But there is not a lot of growth; while we do see new people from time to time, most of them do not stay. For this reason, we need to consider if there is an opportunity to make changes. I hope that throughout the church, we can talk together (and listen to one another) to find the best way forward.

I heard this quotation at a recent funeral: What you do for yourself dies with you; what you do for others lives for ever. So the question we face is: What can we do with our Sunday services to help others to worship the Lord our God? I'd love to hear from you.

With best wishes and prayers, Martin

Tanzania Development Trust "Will you help build a dispensary* in my Matongo valley?" says 14 year old Ghati Marwa. "I remember when I was 8 years old, I was sick and, my mother carried me on her back to Kiagata Health Centre 15km away. It's a very steep climb over the hills and my mother was sweating a lot. When we got to the Centre, she was laughed at and was told to move away from the nurses because she had a bad smell. That was unkind but they didn't understand she had carried me 15km. I have a dream that one day we will get treatment from our own Matongo Dispensary. Surely country people should have health care not just the people who live at the trading centres where there are roads and businesses?" *In Tanzania, a Dispensary is the first tier of local healthcare. It is like a small hospital with a maternity ward and a room for minor operations and for mother and baby clinics.

Matongo Village lies between 2 ranges of high hills. The nearest health care facility is 15km away (as the crow flies) crossing hills. The only road to Matongo is a cart track. Yet here and in surrounding hamlets 10,000 people live. They want their own dispensary to care for local people.

The problems faced by the local people in Matongo Valley:

- No routine immunisation for babies and children. After the construction of a staff house sponsored by TDT, nurses from a dispensary 15km away come once a month for a mother's clinic.
- The biggest health problems are malaria, pre-natal mortality, deaths of young mothers, lack of immunisation and the prevalence of HIV/AIDS.
- Since the area is surrounded by hills on all sides, pregnant mothers have to climb the high footpaths that go over the hills and may take five hours to reach the nearest dispensary. As a result, many get no maternity care.
- Other chronic diseases occur such as TB and sometimes kwashiorkor, cholera, diarrhoea, trachoma and scabies.
- Although the government fights against FGM, up to 90% of girls are victims. Very little girls aged four to eight years old are forced to undergo FGM. As a result, they suffer a lot. Our community needs education to get change.

Matongo is in Butiama District. Although the District Council can only contribute £3000 of capital funds to build the dispensary, the District Medical Officer and District Commissioner are very keen to see it completed. The DMO has allocated funds to staff and equip the dispensary and it is a priority for connection to mains electricity in 2017 under Tanzania's Rural Electrification Programme. Water is currently brought to the dispensary and staff house by the donkey cart, however the completed buildings will also have water harvesting.

Julian Marcus is the project officer for Matongo and is currently out in Tanzania with Ann. On their return this month, they will share the latest news of the project.
